Father Anderson Joins SMC Faculty

Among the new faculty members at St. Michael's College this year is a newly ordained priest from Selma, Alabama, Rev. Moses Anderson, S.S.E.

Fr. Anderson was born in Selma, Alabama, one of a family of seven children. He was educated at the local schools in his hometown, and came to learn about the Catholic faith through the Boys' Club, organized by the Edmundite Fathers. The Boys' Club emphasized spiritual education, but it also provided the athletic equipment and sporting events which concerned every youth in Selma.

It was especially through the efforts of his firm friend, Fr. Nelson Ziter, S.S.E., that Fr. Anderson eventually entered the church at the age of 21.

After two years at Xavier College in New Orleans, Louisiana, Fr. Anderson came to Putney, Vermont, for one year of novitiate. His two years of minor seminary took place at St. Michael's College and from there he entered the Edmundite major seminary in Burlington, Vermont, where he obtained his degree in Theology.

Fr. Anderson

Fr. Anderson was ordained on May 30, 1958 in Burlington by Bishop Joyce along with two other Edmundites.

From August of 1958, to August of 1959, Fr. Anderson was doing parish work in Charlotte, North Carolina, in the diocese of Raleigh. He then spent the remaining three weeks of the summer with his family in Selma, prior to his return to St. Michael's College.

On a campus which is very familiar to him, Fr. Anderson teaches Theology 102 of which he has three sections, and Theology 301. He is proctor in St. John's and finds time for an occasional game of his favorite basketball.

1960 Shield Progresses Towards Early Publication

Phil Spina, advertising manager for the St. Michael's College Yearbook, reports that the 1960 Shield is progressing rapidly toward an early publication.

Mass.

The ideas and process dealt with at this seminar are extremely important in the publication of an outstanding yearbook. Other colleges attending the seminar aside from Saint Michael's were Dartmouth, U.V.M., U. of Rhode Island and Boston U.

Mr. Spina said that it is the highest hope of the year-

The St. Michael's chapter of the Delta Epsilon Sigma Honor Society will hold the induction ceremonies for its seventeen new members at 8:15 P.M., Monday, November 23, in Science Hall 107 with Brother Gergory F.S.C., Vice-President of Manhattan College delivering the DES lecture and with Mr. John Donoghue, Chapter President officiating.

DES is a Catholic Honor Society with more than eighty-two College chapters throughout the United States. Founded in April 1939, the society is open to any accredited, Catholic Liberal Arts College in the United States. The purpose of the society is to recognize and encourage the high idea of scholarship and also to consider the promise for future scholarship.

At an election-meeting held in the latter part of October, two Juniors, twelve Seniors, two faculty members and one alumnus were elected to the DES by the members of the St. Michael's chapter. The basic requirements for membership demands that the student have a cum laude average and that his present work indicates that he will graduate with honors. Until this year no Juniors were accepted into the society. Camillo Brenes and Dave Mahon who have achieved an average of 90 or better are the first Juniors accepted by the St. Michael's chapter. The twelve seniors are: James F. McGuirk, John A. Chatowski, Walter G. Andrews, Albert D. Kelly, Jr., William D. Goyette, Michael F. Gelinas, David W. Barry, Norman J. Dame, Francis A.

Mr. John Donoghue

Galibois, George A. Bazinet, Charles F. O'Brien, and Angelo J. Cannizzaro. The two faculty members are: Rev. L.L. Lyons, S.S.E., and Mr. V.H. Naramore. Francis Mahon, the only alumnus, will have the honor of being inducted along with his son, Dave Mahon.

EXECUTIVE COMMITTEE

Mr. Thomas Garrett, St. Michael's Registrar, a former three year President and presently on the National Executive Committee, recently attended a committee meeting at the Conrad Hilton Hotel in Chicago under the leadership of Rev. William O'Donnell, National President and Academic Dean at St. Thomas College, St. Paul, Minn.

Among other officers attending was Rev. Walter Ong, S.J., from St. Louis, who has been present on campus as lecturer for prior induction ceremonies; Dr. Thomas Morton, from Niagara University who graduated from the University of Vermont; Father Edward Maziarz, dean of St. Joseph's, Collegeville, Ind.; the present National Vice-President, Sister Mary Eileen, I.H.M., from the Immaculate Heart College, Los Angeles and Miss Ruth Preng from Mississippi, Secretary-Treasurer. During the meeting the information handbook of the society was revised.

The duties of the Executive Committee are to carry out the business of the previous National Meeting and to take care of the business of the society prior to the next National Meeting which will be held in April of 1960.

Prior to the induction meeting, a dinner will be served the new members at the Park Cafe in Burlington sponsored by the College. Following the induction meeting, a social hour will be held at the Alumni lounge with all students invited. The Faculty Wives Club will assist.

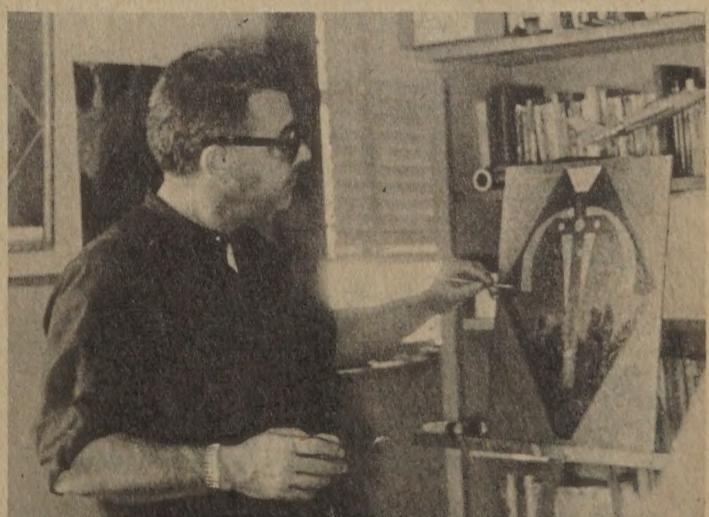

Versatile Father Duford Adds Abstract Painting To His Many Accomplishments

Sometimes the frailty of mere human words is inadequate to express a thought and when this happens to Rev. Father Gerard P. Duford, S.S.E., he uses painting as a medium to express his ideas.

Father Duford began painting around a year and a half ago. Because of an intense interest in the classical masters, his curiosity was aroused and in his collection of color prints of the renaissance masters he found stimulation to imitate them.

In all his painting Father is obsessed with one idea, which is the expression of a religious truth. Having had no formal training all his paintings are the result of original ideas. He is not interested in painting what he sees, but rather in the expression of mental images. The main purpose of his work is to portray the thoughts that words cannot express—that is, to say something with paint.

Many of his designs are abstract and most of them contain a hidden meaning. For instance he is presently working on the idea of expressing on canvas what a spider looks like to a fly. This symbolism is meant to convey the expression of what temptation looks like to a man. His paintings are the products of his imagination and one of the themes that he employs is the idea of harmony in man.

Father works both in water colors and in oil paintings. There is great depth in the mental images which he is trying to convey, but his expression is not easily overlooked. His favorite among the classical masters is El Greco whose color and technique is the expression of deep thought. His favorite among the moderns is Salvador Dali whose ideas are not shallow by any means.

Father Duford is presently engaged in designing the stations of the cross, which he plans to paint at a later date. His collections of paintings goes back fifteen years, but as of yet he holds no opinion on art. He does all his own designing and the picture that he portrays tells more on one piece of canvas than certain books can in eight hundred pages.

Meals will be served at the regular times on Thanksgiving Day. This is official unless a last minute announcement is made by the proper authorities.

by Dave Williams and Mike Fitzsimons

We arrived back here Tuesday after spending the long weekend in the company of several other hardy souls in a cabin on Mendon Mt. The object of this venture was to shoot a deer but it didn't quite work out that way. As it was, Butch Streeter got a flat tire, Jack Donahue got flat feet, Joe Vargas got flat beer, and Mikey and Davey almost got flattened by snipers. Brian Tarleton fired the only other shot and at that it was a backfire which renovated the right side of the cabin.

Obviously we were not using the right type of weapon or for that matter hunting the right type of animal. Roger Gill, using his Buick (convertible model) had no trouble getting his cow. Of course, legal complications have arisen due to the fact that cow season doesn't open for several weeks yet. It may be a fine trophy but the ammunition is a bit too dear for our taste.

Alvin the harmonica player (Robert Kasinski) seems to be a man of many talents. In addition to being a virtuoso on the harmonica, he is an authority on the contents of the 50-14. His main ambition as we hear it, is to become commander of the drill team. The only obstacle he has to surmount is that of the drill team's steadfast refusal to recognize his abilities in this field. On the other hand, the senior class has so much regard for him that they are constantly inviting him to their rooms in order that they might enjoy his diversified talents.

Contrary to the title With Malice Towards None, Dick Hickey seems to feel something akin to malice toward the Student Council and the manner in which their meetings are conducted. The brevity of these get togethers seems to be the sore spot with our esteemed editor. We would like to offer the following solution to the problem -

Increase the membership to at least 376 with a mandatory roll call at every meeting. Upon completion of this, Mr. Barry could call on Mr. Messenger for a report from the Club Status Committee. He would then discuss the activities of the 20 or 25 existing clubs and the 800 which are pending. The question of money for these clubs would then arise thus causing the meeting to run through Thursday afternoon. By this time another roll call would be necessary to find out how many council members had died or left school during the meeting.

Jack Chatowski who was representing Smith Brothers cough drops until last week, lost his position due to the Mafia's insistence upon his having a clean shaven physiognomy. This is the same group that has been terrorizing Moose Goyette.

Skip (tie and jacket necessary) Burkle has invited a rhesus monkey (tie and jacket optional) to be guest speaker at a Pre-Medical Society meeting in the near future. On the same program, Bob (sweat shirt and sneakers) Pellegrine is expected to bring his slides on discovering where the yellow went.

Be sure to eat a nice big bird over the holidays boys, with cranberry sauce?

Question: What do you consider the ideal date?

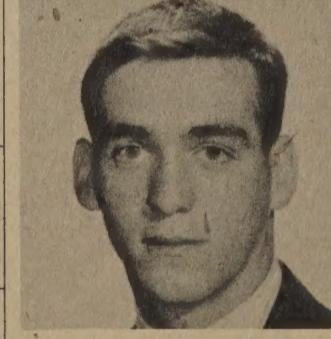

Dan Sherbeck, Class of '60,
Lodi, New Jersey

The ideal date depends upon the boy as well as the girl. It is a mutual affair where both parties lend an equal amount to the event. However there are particular elements that contribute to a more satisfactory date. Adherence to Catholic principles, mature outlook on life and a friendly personality are fundamental. Such traits as a good conversationalist and appreciation also enhance the successfulness of the occasion. Common interests and appearance also add to the affair but I believe the possession of the fundamentals are the most important for any date or relationship.

David LaMarche, Class of '61,
Brattleboro, Vermont

The dates I have considered ideal are those who have been congenial. Among some of the other features are punctuality favorable appearance and an understanding of collegiate dating. This type of date won't mind the shortcomings of her escort such as, minor 45 minute delays, the small bill of fare like coffee, and walking. The above CAN contribute to an evening of pleasure and enjoyment BUT - see you in the cemetery, guys.

Joe Scarlatelli, Class of '62,
North Attleboro, Mass.

The perfect date is one in which you as well as your date have a good time. It is not so much the place or places you may go, but the girl you go with.

She need not be a "Miss America" (this would help) but a fairly attractive, fun-loving female.

Past and Present

When social events not only occur, but also are reflected upon, there arises political thinking. The first example of political history, indeed the first real history in the modern sense, was The Peloponnesian war by Thucydides.

The great crisis which Athens had reached in the fifth century B.C. forced its serious political thinkers to analyze the nature and causes of the crisis. To Thucydides, the War was the inevitable result of the power-state. And although we may reject this mechanistic, materialistic view of history today, we must judge his analysis not by our own modern standards, but those that influenced him then.

Political theorists would do well to read and analyze Thucydides' History as extensively as Plato is read. Thucydides expressed a historical reality, not a philosophical phantasm.

What did Thucydides consider to be the 'form' through which the state operates? What a number of human beings, unconnected by ties of blood and family religion, are living together within a given territory, they are forced to discover a "modus vivendi" which shall be acceptable to a majority of its inhabitants. With the case of Athens, this consolidation did not occur immediately but was preceded by an intermediate stage when autonomous villages federated for the occasional purposes of defense.

This process of consolidation had fully matured by the fifth century, and the 'modus vivendi' of Athens was a democracy. This democracy was a balance, whose "administration favours the many instead of the few . . ."; its laws afforded equal protection to all, and social advancement and political power were based upon ability.

Thucydides was committed to this form of government, as were the great majority of his fellow Athenians. And as an historian, he was also aware that the swift, and sometimes irrational, shift of public opinion would impede the healthy and effective functioning of Athenian society. The ideal society, the one that existed in Athens, was a combination of participation of the citizens, guided by virtuous, intelligent leaders inflexibly devoted to the good of the community as a whole. It was this fusion of educated, responsible leadership (Pericles) combined with the 'demos' that existed at the beginning of the Peloponnesian War.

The final defeat of Athens was caused by the irresponsible leadership of the demagogues of the post-Periclean period. Both Thucydides and Plato would agree to this. But here any resemblance ends.

Thucydides resolutely refused to discard democracy as the proper 'modus vivendi' for Athens. Even though the liberty it implied had been betrayed by poor leadership, and Athens had degenerated into a state of rampant license, with proper leadership of the type which Pericles gave to Athens, it constituted the indispensable environment for the nobly creative and dynamic society which Athens had achieved.

To Plato, liberty had proved itself so false an ideal that only its complete rejection was possible. Plato substituted an oligarchy of enlightened intellectuals to reign over the masses. This sounds almost like modern totalitarianism, just the reason for Plato to be called the father of the tyranny of the modern total state. In Plato's ideal Republic, the citizens were to be completely dominated by the enlightened and educated guardians, Platonic prototypes of contemporary totalitarian Bureaucrats.

Plato pales significantly in his reaction to the reaction to the Athenian debacle when compared to Thucydides' realistic, and historical, conception of the state as a balance of opposites, a society of liberty and order guided by responsible leadership. Variations of this Athenian society have existed throughout history.

Even the United States today can be said to be analogous to Athenian democracy. But nowhere in history can we find the Republic ever having existed, or signs that it ever will, except in the minds of philosophers and political theorists.

The Political Science Club Past... Present... Future...

This year the Political Science Club has started off on a very active year. To date the Club has had three interesting meetings. At the first meeting of the Club, the members were addressed by the various officers and Dr. Robert Spencer. They were told of future plans and the objectives of the Club.

On November 4, Dr. Paul Power of the Political Science Department of St. Michael's College gave an interesting and informative lecture on "Summit Talks 1959-60." A lively question and answer period followed the main lecture.

On Nov. 18th the Club presented a film entitled "The Constitution and Military Power." The case in point, covered by the film, was the legality of the Japanese "detention camps" used by the United States on the west coast during World War II. After the film Dr. Spencer answered questions concerning the Supreme Courts decision on this case.

On November 27 the Political Science Club will present Mr. Lionel Simard as a speaker. Mr. Simard, as many remember, taught at St. Michael's last year. Presently he is at St. Lawrence University teaching Foreign Languages. Last summer Mr. Simard took a trip to the Soviet Union. Having a speaking knowledge of Russian, he learned a great deal about the Russian people. Mr. Simard will also show films of his recent trip.

As far as other future meetings, the club plans to show more films on the Constitution. Also we hope to get more speakers to discuss present International problems.

The Political Science Club at St. Michael's and the International Affairs Club at Trinity College have been inviting each other to their respective club meetings. Both clubs feel that this is an excellent policy because in this way both groups benefit from a speaker rather than just one. This policy shall be continued in the future.

Last year the Political Science Club took a trip to Ottawa to observe the Canadian government in operation. It was a very successful trip and all the members that went gained invaluable knowledge. This year due to the Ottawa trip of last year, the Club plans to repeat this overture. The club hopes to take more members this year than it did last year.

The Political Science Club has one major objective. This is to serve the intellectual needs of the campus. The meetings are open to the whole student body. A person doesn't have to be a Political Science Concentrator to be a member. The officers, members, and advisors hope to, in the future, bring more topics of importance to St. Michael's College.

The Club is striving to stimulate intellectual debate, and interest to keep the student body informal on important international and domestic issues that have such an important effect on our everyday lives.

Marks To Be Sent Home Only On A Semester Basis

by Bart Longo

In an official statement to the parents of St. Michael's students, the Dean of Studies, Paul Morin, S.S.E., disclosed the school's new policy on the sending home of grades.

Grades turned in by instructors in November and April are now to be regarded as progress grades and indicate at the time they are issued, the standing of the student. The new policy, which the school will put in use this year regards the final grades. They will be the marks sent home to parents after January for the fall semester and in June for the full year and second semester also.

This change makes St. Michael's marking system like that of most universities and colleges in the country, where the marks are given to parents for the Fall and Spring semesters only. The previous policy of giving quarterly grades was merely an extra dividend, employed for the benefit of both the student and his parents.

PROGRESS GRADES

Once progress grades are computed by the instructors, a report is given to the listed student-advisors. It is up to the individual student therefore to see his advisor, get his marks, and discuss his program with these advisors.

Those students on Warning or Strict Probation will receive a notice from the Academic Dean. Their parents will also receive a notice that they are on shaky ground.

The Pre-Medical Society To Tour UVM Medical School

by James Harkins

The Saint Michael's Pre-Medical Society will tour the University of Vermont College of Medicine on Monday, November 23.

On November 13, Frederick Burkle, president of the Society, conferred with the Dean of the College of Medicine, Dr. George A. Wolf, in order to set up a suitable program of interest to the attending pre-medical students.

MEETING WITH DEANS

A select group of 50 students was chosen at a previous meeting. It was decided that the entire group would meet first of all with the Dean of the College of Medicine and with the Dean of Admissions. At this time these two deans will address the students on the various problems that they will encounter in medical school. This will be followed by a question and answer period.

After this has been completed, the students will then be divided up into three sections. Each section will receive a tour of the main Medical School Building, the Rehabilitation Center of the Bishop DeGoesbriand Hospital, and the Mary Fletcher unit of the Medical School.

ANATOMY LAB

The high point of the afternoon will be a visit to the Anatomy laboratory. It is in this laboratory that cadavers are dissected and studied by the medical students. Since most of the students have never seen this type of laboratory, it will be of extreme interest to them.

Psychiatrists say it's not good for a man to keep too much to himself. The Department of Internal Revenue says the same thing.

The tour, which is scheduled to run for approximately three hours, will commence at 2 p.m. Those members who have signed up will meet in front of the U.V.M. Medical School Building promptly at 1:45, so that they may be placed into their respective groups.

Students who have served on extended active duty in the U.S. Air Force are eligible to join the Air Reserve in Burlington. Training sessions are held twice each month in the evening downtown at 124 College Street. A reservist may receive a full days pay for each training session and is eligible for a two week short tour during the summer months. Valuable retirement credits are also gained.

Any discharged Air Force veteran is eligible. Information is available at the Air Force Reserve Office at 124 College Street, telephone 4-6382.

from each state in the U.S. who will go to Washington to attend a week long series of lectures on the growth of the youth of our nation. This year President Eisenhower will commence this assembly by delivering a keynote address which will start the wheels of progress in motion.

O'Brien received his appointment from Governor Johnson in 1958 and thus far the 23 selected committee members have been meeting periodically every two months. Besides Charles O'Brien, there are 9 adults from all walks of life plus another college student from UVM and a high school student from Springfield, Vermont.

In addition to this national meeting in Washington in early March there will also be a state wide meeting in Montpelier, Vermont, on December 1. At this meeting there will be 150 representatives from across the state who will contribute their opinions to the topic which concerns the growth of the youth of the state.

O'Brien himself is preparing a report on "Can Any Young High School Boy Receive a College Education Regardless of Financial Situation?"

Machiavellianism Unveiled

by Charles O'Brien

It was very disturbing to read in last week's MICHAELMAN a statement by Mike Gelinas to the effect that historical necessity removed politics from the moral sphere. I realize that Mr. Gelinas may have intended only to relate the thought of a particular writer, in this case Thucydides. However, as it stands, the declaration of an absence of morality in politics is implicitly called a great contribution to Western civilization.

It must be pointed out this is sure Machiavellianism. Jacques Maritain (in The Range of Reason p. 136), says: "The Historic responsibility of Machiavelli consists in having accepted, recognized, endorsed as normal the fact of political immorality." According to Maritain, government should have as its primary end the common good not some impersonal raison d'état.

Maritain points out (in Man and the State, Chap. 1, section 5) that, after all, the state is not a person and has no rights whatsoever of its own. He says: "The state is endowed with topmost authority not by its own right and for its own sake, but only by virtue and to the extent that it serves the common good."

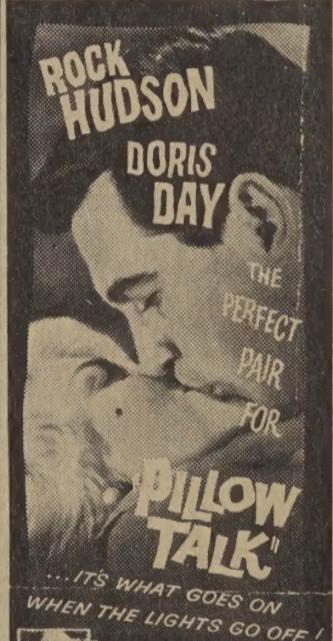

One is prompted to ask: "What becomes of my right to life, liberty and the pursuit of happiness, if at this very moment they are prey to the caprice of natural casualty? What becomes of my free speech if a raison d'état demands that I be silenced. "Mr. Gelinas is giving us the foundations of totalitarianism and calling them a great contribution.

Addendum: Having checked Mike Gelinas' record for possible Communist affiliations and/or un-American activities, I find the following information:

- (1) His great uncle once asked for Norman Thomas' autograph.
- (2) Mike Gelinas has never given blood.
- (3) Mike Gelinas has never voted in a presidential election.
- (4) Mike Gelinas read all of The Communist Manifesto for Hum 402. Need I say more?

SMC Skiers Train For Coming Season

Ski coach, Dom Casavant, had his hopes fulfilled Tuesday evening when the seemingly endless rainfall at St. Michael's finally turned to snow and whitened the Hilltop for the first time this season.

COMPETITIVE SKIING

In preparing for the coming inter-collegiate Ski Season, Casavant has had his prospective campaigners going through a vigorous training schedule, one which is evident to students every afternoon as a long line of runners goes trotting by the chow hall.

BENEFITS OF RUNNING

"Running", says Casavant, "is the greatest of conditioners and everyone, whether skiing for pleasure or in competition, should make use of its benefits. Running develops ones lungs which, if in the proper condition, can aid a skier enormously."

WATCH FOR RESULTS

It will be worth while to watch the SMC Ski team in action if for no other reason than to see if Dom Casavant's training rules will result in a capable skiing unit.

Iowa vs Notre Dame: The Irish finally benched all-American George Izo due to his inability to play football. White, the second string play caller looked more the all-American than Izo will ever look, but they still lost to Pitt. Another one for the Irish!!!

Iowa

Michigan St. vs Miami: This can be a big game for the Spartans because with a win there will be an outside chance for them to squeak by with the Big Ten championship and the Rose Bowl bid. Definitely the most improved club in football.

Michigan St.

Northwestern vs Illinois: For the past few weeks, the Illini have caused havoc in the Big Ten. They have tied Ohio St., Purdue, and have defeated Wisconsin. There is a possibility of an upset here but this game means too much to the Wildcats.

Northwestern

Wisconsin vs Minnesota: Dale Hackbart lived up to the name that he made for himself but he tossed that greatness around quite a bit as he fumbled the ball on the 2 yard line last week and lost the game. Never two weeks in a row:

Wisconsin

U.S.C. vs U.C.L.A.: This game, nine out of ten times, proves to be a Rose Bowl preview. The undaunted Trojans, with or without Mike "Elbows" McKeever in the game, should still reign as the best in the West:

Southern California

Columbia vs Rutgers: The Scarlet Knights of Rutgers have really put on the pressure to the big teams by winning their last 14 games to only 3 setbacks. It will take more than dreams of Lou Little for Columbia to take this one:

Rutgers

B.U. vs Syracuse: Both teams were, in one way or another, mixed up in upsets last week. B.U. defeated the Eagles from B.C., and Colgate managed to move the football over the 50 yard line against Syracuse. The Terriers were just a flash in the pan but the Orangemen will just keep rolling right along:

Syracuse

Oregon vs Oregon St.: This is the traditional rivalry for both of these schools. The Webfoots are on the trail of the Rose Bowl following close at the heels of mighty U.S.C. and the Beavers will do their best to defeat their rivals but it is a long way to that goal line:

Oregon

Washington St. vs Washington: The Cougars from State have a 5-2 record while the Huskies have an 8-1 record. This game could come out a tie but a flip of the coin says:

Washington

Clemson vs Wake Forest: These two teams will be battling for the Atlantic Coast Conference championship. The Clemson Tigers have been very disappointing lately while the Demon Deacons have just started to get underway. This will be a very hard fought contest but give the nod to:

"Don't count the Freshmen out"! These words were never so true as the first year squad, on a basket, by Bill Lynch, pulled a surprise upset over the Juniors in Inter-class Basketball action Thursday night. The same freshmen, in the league opener Tuesday, were downed by the Sophomores and were destined to suffer the same fate at the hands of the Juniors.

UPI Selects SMC Coach To Represent Vermont State

George "Doc" Jacobs, St. Michael's College basketball coach, has again been named to the United Press International Board of Basketball Coaches. Jacobs will represent Vermont in compiling the weekly UPI College Division Basketball standings for the country.

The board selects a coach in each state to compile a weekly rating of teams. This marks Jacobs' third consecutive appointment to the board.

NCAA FINALS

St. Michael's has been New England Small College Basketball Champs for the last three years. A veteran of 32 years in coaching, Jacobs has guided St. Michael's to the N.C.A.A. finals at Evansville, Indiana for the last two years.

In facing the country's top teams, Jacobs has an excellent opportunity to see the best in action. The appointment came from Leo Petersen, UPI Sports Editor.

LISTEN UP!

Plans are tentatively in the making for the chartering of buses to the Dartmouth game.
COST: Approximately $3.

With Joe Kozlowski shuffling his players throughout Tuesday night's opener like they were going out of style, he was able to get a closer look at some good little ball players. They can shoot, jump and run and have a pretty good sense of organization which is so necessary in this league.

FRESHMEN LOSE BY ONE!

The Freshmen were tied at halftime in their game with the Sophomores and eventually lost by only one point, 39-38. A few easy shots were missed along with a great number of free throws, which could have given them a victorious start. No doubt they will improve and tighten up an already taut league.

Although Jerry O'Neil played exceptional ball off the backboards and netted double figures with a good outside jumper, the overall Sophomore showing was bad. They didn't play as a team which was the main reason the frosh got so close.

John Schlegel, Ronnie Janson, Chet Menczyw, and Jim Van Waigenen all played good ball and are good enough to take the whole show if they can weave their talents in the coming games.

SENIORS LOSE BY 18

The Seniors were lousy on defense, and even worse offensively in their loss to the quick Juniors 62-44. The height advantage they had was not used as it should have been because of the lack of a good back court man. Griffin was good when in possession, but this was seldom.

Operating a slow and smooth offensive pattern with little Gene Goulet running the show the "boys of '61" took advantage of a poor senior zone defense. Goulet, Den McCarthy, and Bill Freda popped from the outside and Dick Guillette along with Bob Patterson did a great job under the boards against the taller and heavier Seniors.

Guillette played his usual good game jumping, tapping and dribbling with style. Pound for pound he's the best rebounder in the league which with his good soft touch jump shot makes him a double threat.

Thus, the Juniors continue to rack up the points in the Interclass circuit, pulling way out in front of the other classes.
